JSU'S INAUGURAL FACULTY RESEARCH SYMPOSIUM

Faculty Commons and the FRS planning committee proudly sponsored the 2022 Inaugural Faculty Research Symposium on Thursday, November 3rd. The event, which took place in Merrill Hall, began at 8:00 am and included presentations in Long, Short, Round Table, and Poster formats. A keynote luncheon, catered by Tre Ragazzi's Italian restaurant (Glencoe, Alabama), was presented by Dr. Tina Deshotels, Professor of Sociology.

In total, over 65 presentations took place in 15 rooms that spanned four floors of Merrill Hall. The Long and Poster presentations were judged by 90 volunteer faculty members, and over 200 attendees signed in for the various presentations throughout the day. Special thanks to Dean Cunningham for allowing us to take over Merrill Hall. Special thanks to Maria James (Admin Assistant to Dean Cunningham) and Dr. Gina Mabrey (Dept. Head Kinesiology) for booking rooms and rescheduling classes so that the event could take place.

AWARDS RECEPTION

After back-to-back faculty presentations, morning coffee and pastry refreshments, and a delicious keynote Italian luncheon, the Faculty Research Symposium ended with an Awards Reception celebrating the accomplishments of our faculty, complete with awards for Best Long and Best Poster presentations, a spread of good food, a beer and wine selection, and faculty fellowship.

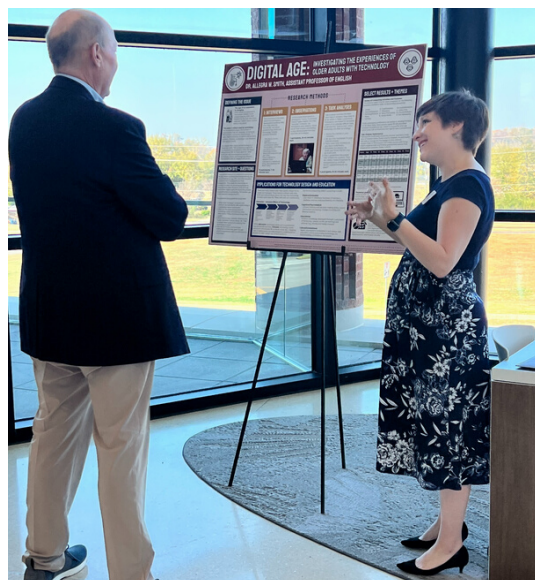

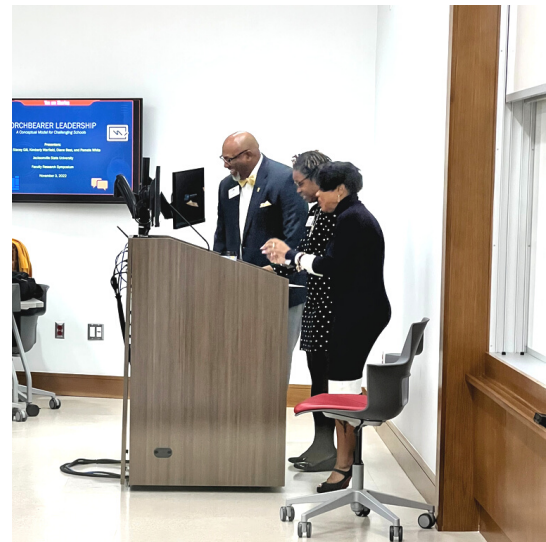

"The Best Long Presentation" was awarded to Dr. David Dempsey (MCIS) and Dr. Heidi Demspsey (Psychology). Their joint presentation was titled "Predictors of JSU Student Success."

"The Best Poster Presentation" was awarded to Dr. Allegra Smith (English). Her poster was titled "Digital Age: Investigating the Experiences of Older Adults with Technology."

Congrats to all of our presenters.
